INTERNATIONAL ARBITRATION

Board of Referees May Settle Differences With Mexico for All Time to Come.

(By Associated Press)

Washington, June 9.—Arbitration of differences between the United States and Mexico through an international commission yesterday became a possibility.

Diplomats, particularly those of Central and South American republics, were much interested in information that administration officials are considering seriously proposing such a course to General Carranza.

If they decide to suggest this, it would be sent as the United States' answer to Carranza's last note. Acceptance would then depend on the de facto government.

Under the treaty of 1848 between the United States and Mexico, the presidents of the two nations might appoint an equal number of commissioners to whom could be submitted all the vexatious questions arising out of relations between the two countries during the last four years. Among these might be:

Withdrawal of American troops from Mexico.

Indemnification for American lives lost and property destroyed or damaged during the recent Mexican revolutions.

Disposition of customs revenues collected during the American occupation of Vera Cruz, now held by the United States, and claims for property damage growing out of the Vera Cruz incident.

Long pending disputes concerning the exact location of certain portions of the international boundary line.

The commission probably would meet in some South American country.

Whether President Wilson had reached a final decision on the question of proposing arbitration to General Carranza was not indicated to-day.

The treaty of 1848 provides that "should such a course be proposed by either party, it shall be acceded to by the other unless deemed by it altogether incompatible with the nature of the difference or the circumstances of the case."

Interest in the suggested plan here today was based largely on the belief that it would tend to benefit relations between the United States and South American nations.

Next to Man.
The teacher was questioning her class about graduation in the scale of existence and asked, "What comes next to man?"

Little Tommy raised his hand anxiously.

"Well, Tommy," interrogated the teacher, "what is it that comes next to man?"

Tommy, smarting under a sense of a previous defeat, responded: "His undershirt, ma'am."

A Very Good Reason.
During the lesson one afternoon a violent thunderstorm arose, and, to lessen the fright of the children, the teacher began telling of the wonders of the elements.

"And now, Jimmy," she asked, "why is it that lightning never strikes twice in the same place?"

"Because," said Jimmy confidently, "after it hits once, the same place ain't any more."
